Our fifth grade students have recently completed researching and learning about our past Presidents and have prepared enhanced podcasts that I know you will enjoy. In order to complete what you will view the students researched details and accomplishments of their president, wrote a script with their partner, found images to support the script, and finally using garage band software assembled the podcast and added appropriate music and sound effects. This project truly represents what students can accomplish in a 21st century classroom.

It is my hope that when parents ask their child about what they did in school our children respond by proudly providing their digital creations to their parents via the internet. Welcome to your child's world! Enjoy their podcasts. Their videos are available by clicking here to enter our video section in the document and download center.
